Father Stephen's Message to the Faithful

Gregory the Theologian on Christmas Decorations and Pageants

For the present let us speak of the festival which is called both Nativity and Theophany. For it is called both, two titles belong to the same thing.

For God was manifested to man by birth. On the one hand He is Being, eternally Being of the Eternal Being (God from God) above every cause and word, for the Word of God is before every word.

And on the other hand, for our sake, He is also Becoming, so that He who gives us our being might also give us our well-being, or rather that He might restore us by His Incarnation when we by our wickedness have fallen from our well-being.

The name Theophany is given to the feast in reference to the Manifestation (for in Greek Theophany means Manifestation of God) and that of Nativity is in respect of His birth.

This then is our present festival. It is this that we are celebrating today: the coming of God to man: that we might go forth or rather (for this is the more proper expression) that we might go back to God.

That putting off the old man
We might put on the new
And that having died in Adam so we might live in Christ
Being born with Christ
And crucified with Him
And buried with Him
And rising with Him.

Therefore, let us keep the feast
Not after the manner of a pagan festival,
But in a Godly way.
Not after the way of this world
But in the fashion of the world which is above.

Not as something which is our own,
But as that which belongs to Him who is ours,
Or rather as our Master's.

Not as of weakness
But as of healing.
Not as of creation,
But as of recreation.

And how shall this be?
Let us not decorate our porches
Or arrange dances,
Nor adorn the streets.
Let us not feast with our eyes,
Nor enchant the ears with music,
Nor enervate the nostrils with perfume,
Nor prostitute the taste,
Nor indulge the touch.

These are the ways that lead to lead to evil
And are the entrances to sin.
Let us leave all these things to the pagans.
But let us who are worshippers of the Word of God,
If we must in some way have luxury,
Let us seek it in God's Word,
And in the laws,

And the scriptural stories,
Especially those which tell us of the present festival,
So that our pleasure may be like unto Him
Who has called us together today.

...For He who gives riches
Becomes poor,
For He assumes the poverty of my flesh
That I may assume the riches of His Divinity...

Synaxis of the Most Holy Mother of God

(Commemorated December 26)

The Synaxis of the Most Holy Theotokos: On the second day of the feast, the Synaxis of the Most Holy Theotokos is celebrated. Combining the hymns of the Nativity with those celebrating the Mother of God, the Church points to Mary as the one through whom the Incarnation was made possible. His humanity - concretely and historically - is the humanity He received from Mary. His body is, first of all, her body. His life is her life. This feast, the assembly in honor of the Theotokos, is probably the most ancient feast of Mary in the Christian tradition, the very beginning of her veneration by the Church.

Six days of post-feast bring the Christmas season to a close on December 31. At the services of all these days, the Church repeats the hymns and songs glorifying Christ's Incarnation, reminding us that the source and foundation of our salvation is only to be found in the One who, as God before the ages, came into this world and for our sake was "born as a little Child."
